LAURELLE FAVREAU was raised in Prince Albert, Saskatchewan and studied languages at the University of Saskatchewan. A trained musician and dancer, Miss Favreau began her career in film and video production. She joined General Arts Management, Inc. (GAMI) in 1983 and was named vice-president in 1986. In 1987, at the age of 29, she purchased GAMI and, as president, she now represents some of Canada's top jazz and classical performers, as well as international attractions. Miss Favreau is also president of the Canadian Association of Artists Managers.

KAREN KIESER, a graduate of the University of Toronto, obtained both a Master of Music in Performance and a Master of Arts in Musicology. She performed as a professional pianist for many years and, at CBC Radio Music, she has held a variety of positions, ranging from researcher, writer and host to senior music producer of Arts National and coordinating producer of Live from Roy Thomson Hall. She has been head of CBC Radio Music since September of 1986.

DAVID PAUL SCHAFER is also a graduate of the University of Toronto, where he obtained a Master of Arts in Economics. He has since taught at Dalhousie University, the University of Michigan, and Acadia University. For the Province of Ontario Council for the Arts, he held the positions of assistant director and economic consultant. He has been engaged as a cultural adviser to various municipal, provincial, national and international organizations and has written a number of reports and articles. He is presently the coordinator of the Arts Administration program at Scarborough Campus, University of Toronto.
